Title:

Issue on some of the noise vector annotation of S-1B products generated between 2018-03-13 and 2018-03-15

Description:

Some of the S-1B L1/L2 products (IW/EW) processed with IPF v2.90 between 2018-03-13 and 2018-03-15 with auxiliary file S1B_AUX_PP1_V20160422T000000_G20180313T093244.SAFE, could present outlier values in the noise annotations.

In the L1 (SLC and GRD) products:

- In the main annotation file, noisePowerCorrectionFactor contains a power level much larger than the others (higher than 100, thus higher than 20dB).
- In the noise annotation file, some noiseRangeVector on the noiseRangeLut has a much higher noise power than the others.

In the L2 OCN products:

- L2 variables owiNesz and OwiNrcsNeszCorr derived from noise information present erroneous values.

Post processing of noise removal performed by end user on these products may therefore provide erroneous results.

The list of impacted products is provided in appendix of this quality disclaimer (IW and EW modes, Level 1 and Level 2 products).

Cause:

On 13th March 2018, a new version of internal Level 0 Noise products (not provided to end users but used by the processor) was generated with the aim of improving the quality of the noise related annotation in the L1 products. However, this modification introduced outliers in the denoising annotation for some products. This anomaly has no impact on the Level 0 products provided to end users.

The issue was solved by updating the configuration of the processor (new version of AUX_PP1) on 2018-03-15. With this new configuration file, the field estimateNoiseEquivalentPowerFlag is set to False for IW/EW, so that the IPF uses the same information as for previous versions of the IPF.

As this modification occurred at the same time of the deployment of IPF 2.90 and as its impact was corrected using a specific AUX_PP1, the potentially impacted products can be segregated by considering:

- The processing date: between 2018-03-13 and 2018-03-15 included
- The version of the processor: IPF 2.90
- The name of the AUX_PP1 file: S1B_AUX_PP1_V20160422T000000_G20180313T093244.SAFE

Status:

The cause of the anomaly and the impacted products are identified (see section cause above, and description at the top of the document).

The complete list of impacted products is provided in appendix of the document.

A new configuration of the processor was implemented (by using an update PP1: S1B_AUX_PP1_V20160422T000000_G20180315T153944.SAFE) and the products generated with this configuration are not impacted.

Mitigation:

The L1 imagery (i.e. raster file) is presenting no issue. It is only an issue related to the noise and denoise information. If the users are performing denoising based on the provided information, it might introduce artefacts in the denoised images.

Prior using the range denoising vector (rangeNoiseVector) the user may remove vectors presenting extremely high values with respect to the previous vectors (or rescale the vector) to the mean value of the good ones.
